Four Florida Behavioral Health Association (FBHA) Providers Named “America’s Best Residential Addiction Treatment Centers” by Newsweek

Tallahassee, Fla. – The Florida Behavioral Health Association (FBHA) announced that four of its member organizations have been named to Newsweek’s “America’s Best Residential Addiction Treatment Centers 2026” list. The honored providers are Hanley Foundation, Broward Addiction Recovery Center \(BARC\), Agape Network, and Meridian Healthcare.

FBHA President and CEO Melanie Brown Woofert expressed accolades for the achievement and stated, “This recognition underscores the significant role our community providers play in delivering high-quality addiction treatment services across Florida. Their inclusion in the top 22 centers highlights the effectiveness of their programs and the dedication of their staff. It is a testament to our incredible members, working each day to better the lives of Floridians.”

Newsweek and its partner Statista, evaluated 440 addiction treatment centers in the U.S. for its 2026 rankings, considering the following criteria:

- Recommendations from addiction treatment professionals.
- Facility accreditations, certifications and licenses, along with available care services.
- Patient experience reflected in online reviews.
